The story told by both prisoners, and though carefully investigated, not one atemint has been contradicted so far, vastly different from that of the poliemen.

Miss Liekner says: "On Aug. 24 two strangs men, who said they were employed on the Elevated road, came to our spartments. They said they had seen our advertisement and wanted to know if we could do some washing for them. We said we would if they brought it around.

"After some talk regarding the washing they asked us to get them some beer.

"After some talk regarding the washing they asked us to get them some beer. We said that we were busy and had no time for talk, and requested them to leave. This occurred in the kitchen where we were working at the time.

"One of the men said they had lots of time, and was going to stay until he got some beer. He then walked through our sleeping apartments into the parlor and sat down. His companion and we followed. When in the parlor he again demanded some beer, and we again requested them to leave. They refused, and made insulting remarks.

"My sister then went out into the kitchen again, and got two bottles of beer and some cold meat out of the lechet, and began preparing our midday meal. One of the men took one of the bottles and laid 10 cents on the table, bue we refused to accept the money. We then went back to the parlor, and shortly afterwards learned was Carson, left. All the conversation was carried on in German, neither my self nor my sister speaking English. Wildenauer was the spokesman for the two men.

"After Carson left, I started to go out out into the kitchen to help my sister, but the remaining man caught me and, locking the door leading into the kitchen, attempted to assault me. "I screamed, and my sister came to my aid. Wildenauer then left, but soon both of the men returned and arrested us. They abused us, and would not even allow us to change our clothes or button our shoes. "After the men left the first time we found a dollar lying in a shoebox on the
